

Women's, Ethnicity and Intersectional Studies

Women's Studies

While a graduate degree in women's studies is not offered, coursework in women's studies may be included in other areas, such as the community and clinical programs in psychology. Students may orient course electives and thesis research to accommodate an interest in women's studies.

Ethnic Studies

Although a graduate program is not currently available in ethnic studies, the department of women's, ethnicity and intersectional studies participates extensively with other departments in the multidisciplinary Master of Arts in communication. See requirements for this program in the Elliott School of Communication section of the Graduate Catalog.

Courses in Women's, Ethnicity and Intersectional Studies

- Ethnic Studies (ETHS) (<http://catalog.wichita.edu/graduate/courses/eths/>)
- Women's Studies (WOMS) (<http://catalog.wichita.edu/graduate/courses/woms/>)