SOC 538. Medical Sociology (3).

General education social and behavioral sciences course. Analyzes social and cultural factors related to physical and mental illness. Also includes the dynamics of communication and role relationships among patients and medical personnel and social research and theory relevant to the health professions. Course includes diversity content.

SOC 539. Juvenile Delinquency (3).

General education social and behavioral sciences course. The factors related to juvenile delinquency and the measures of treatment and prevention. Prerequisite(s): SOC 111.

SOC 543. Aging and Public Policy (3).

Cross-listed as PHS 543. Explores the impact of an aging population on social institutions, covers the history of American aging policies, the organization and financing of health care for the elderly, and discusses policy analysis as an evaluation tool for comparing public approaches to responding to the needs of an increasingly diverse aging population. It considers the process of policy formation, identifies key players and interest groups, and contrasts political ideologies regarding federal, state and private responsibilities for older people. The course emphasizes Social Security, the Older Americans Act, Medicare and Medicaid as policy examples. It also looks at the potential contributions of the older population to society (volunteer services, provision of family care, etc.) as affecting and affected by policy. Course includes diversity content. Prerequisite(s): SOC 111 or PHS 100 or junior standing.

SOC 559. Successful Aging: Theory, Research and Practice (3).

Cross-listed as PHS 559, PSY 559, PSY 559H, SCWK 559, SCWK 559H. Reviews current interventions which promote successful aging. Theoretical bases of this work in biomedical and life span/developmental psychology are featured. Intended for students in the College of Health Professions, Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Engineering. Course includes diversity content. Prerequisite(s): PHS 100, PSY 111, SCWK 201 or SOC 111.

SOC 559H. Successful Aging: Theory, Research and Practice Honors (3).

Cross-listed as PHS 559, PSY 559, PSY 559H, SCWK 559, SCWK 559H. Reviews current interventions which promote successful aging. Theoretical bases of this work in biomedical and life span/developmental psychology are featured. Intended for students in the College of Health Professions, Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Engineering. Course includes diversity content. Prerequisite(s): PHS 100, PSY 111, SCWK 201 or SOC 111.

SOC 560. Dangerous Women in Film (3).

Examines the sociological dimensions of female representation in film, focusing on archetypes such as the Femme Fatale and the Fighting F-toy. By integrating sociological theories with film analysis, students explore how these cinematic figures reflect and reinforce societal norms, power structures and gender ideologies. The course employs a range of sociological frameworks, including feminist theory, intersectionality, and social constructivism, to analyze how films construct and challenge notions of gender, sexuality and power. The curriculum begins with foundational concepts in sociological film analysis, then moves to a critical examination of how the Femme Fatale embodies and resists patriarchal values. Following this, the course investigates the Fighting F-toy as a manifestation of contemporary female empowerment and its implications for societal attitudes towards women. Students engage with both canonical and contemporary media texts to understand their role in shaping and reflecting cultural attitudes. The course culminates in a comprehensive analysis project, encouraging students to apply sociological theories to the study of film and its impact on social perceptions of gender. Course includes diversity content.

SOC 561. Hollywood Melodrama: Chick Flicks, Screen Queens and Domestic Sagas (3).

Explores Hollywood melodrama as a sociological lens for understanding gender roles and family dynamics within the broader cultural context. By analyzing melodramas and contemporary women's films, "chick flicks," students investigate how these films reflect and reinforce societal norms and power structures related to gender and family life. The course employs sociological theories to examine how the genre constructs and challenges notions of womanhood, domesticity and empowerment. Through the study of filmic representations and their social implications, students explore how melodramas portray women's roles within the family and the home, and how these portrayals both reflect and influence cultural attitudes toward gender. The course integrates sociological methods, including discourse analysis and cultural critique, to analyze the political, social and theoretical significance of female-centered films. Students engage with diverse media texts to understand how societal shifts are mirrored and shaped by these films. Course includes diversity content.

SOC 581. Child Abuse and Neglect: The Role of Child Welfare Agencies (3).

Cross-listed as CJ 581Y, SCWK 610AA. Examines the Kansas foster care system from multiple perspectives, including those of social workers, law enforcement and attorneys. Topics covered include services provided to juveniles in the custody of the state, neglect and abuse investigations, government policies affecting youth, the impact of the juvenile criminal justice system, and civil rights litigation involving youth in custody. Students become acquainted with the role of the foster care system, relevant statutory and Supreme Court case law, and law enforcement practices.

SOC 600. Selected Topics in Sociology (3).

An umbrella course created to explore a variety of subtopics differentiated by letter (e.g., 600A, 600B). Not all subtopics are offered each semester – see the course schedule for availability. Students enroll in the lettered courses with specific topics in the titles rather than in this root course. Prerequisite(s): SOC 111, instructor's consent, and substantive area course.

SOC 651. Directed Research (1-3).

Gives the student further research skills in an area of special interest. All students are under the direction of a member of the graduate faculty who guides them in developing research skills. Prerequisite(s): SOC 512 or equivalent and instructor's consent.

SOC 670. Independent Reading (1-3).

For the advanced student capable of doing independent work in an area of special interest. Prerequisite(s): 15 hours of sociology and instructor's consent.

SOC 711. Sociological Theory (3).

Comprehensive survey of classical sociological theory emphasizing theories relevant to the development of sociology. Prerequisite(s): departmental consent.

SOC 713. Statistics for Social and Behavioral Sciences (3).

Applies descriptive and inferential statistics to sociological problems. Includes computer experience with statistical software. Prerequisite(s): departmental consent.

SOC 750. Sociology Workshop (1-3).

An umbrella course created to explore a variety of subtopics differentiated by letter (e.g., 750A, 750B). Not all subtopics are offered each semester – see the course schedule for availability. Students enroll in the lettered courses with specific topics in the titles rather than in this root course.

SOC 781. Cooperative Education (1-4).

Academic program that expands a student's learning experiences through paid employment in a supervised educational work setting related to the student's major field of study or career focus. With advisor approval, up to 4 credit hours of cooperative education may count toward graduate degree requirements.

SOC 781N. Internship (1-3).

Complements and enhances the student's academic program by providing an opportunity to apply and acquire knowledge in a workplace environment as an intern. Individualized programs must be formulated in consultation with, and approved by, appropriate faculty sponsors as well as the Career Development Center. Repeatable for credit.

SOC 811. Advanced Research: Quantitative Methods (3).

Seminar course designed to provide graduate students with the conceptual tools and methodological skills needed to conduct quantitative sociological research. Students are introduced to sampling, measurement and data management issues. In addition, students gain experience with statistical software packages using large-scale data sets. Prerequisite(s): departmental consent.

SOC 812. Advanced Research: Qualitative Methods (3).

Graduate students deepen their understanding of the research process as they are introduced to qualitative methods, methodology and analysis. Students learn to address methodological issues by developing a pilot project requiring them to apply their understanding of qualitative methods, sampling and coding. Through this process, students are prepared to compare the strengths and limitations of quantitative, qualitative and mixed method approaches while becoming critical consumers of qualitative research.

SOC 845. Seminar in Sociological Theory (3).

A comprehensive survey of contemporary sociological theories and their classical roots. Emphasis on theories applicable to students' thesis and nonthesis projects. Generally offered spring semester only. Prerequisite(s): departmental consent.

SOC 847. Seminar in Recent Developments in Sociology (3).

An umbrella course created to explore a variety of subtopics differentiated by letter (e.g., 847A, 847B). Not all subtopics are offered each semester – see the course schedule for availability. Students enroll in the lettered courses with specific topics in the titles rather than in this root course. Prerequisite(s): 15 credit hours of sociology and departmental consent.

SOC 847C. Seminar in the Sociology of Gender (3).

Explores emerging and ongoing issues, theories, research and practice related to the sociology of gender.

SOC 847F. Advanced Data Management (3).

Review of database designs, modeling and data preparation for analysis and reporting including programming, data management techniques and data imputation. Course is an applied research experience utilizing institutional data and common analytical software.

SOC 847G. Statistical Modeling (3).

Applied course using institutional data to perform statistical modeling for defined student outcomes. Familiarity with regression analysis, data management, SPSS syntax and SQL is required.

SOC 847L. Social Policy and Aging (3).

Analyzes and evaluates policies and programs related to aging and the life course. Emphasizes the importance of social values and historical context for understanding current policies, programs and practices.

SOC 847J. Seminar: Addressing Gender-Based Intimate Violence (3).

Explores a pervasive global issue: gender-based intimate violence. Students develop an understanding of the social determinants of intimate violence, with specific attention given to developing hands-on skills related to the science of prevention including planning, implementing and evaluating evidence-based data-driven strategies for addressing dating/domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking (DVSAS). A variety of readings, webinars/workshops, videos, personal reflections and applied learning activities are utilized to provide a foundation for emerging scholars and prevention specialists. Course includes diversity content. Course includes service-learning content.

SOC 851. Directed Project (1-3).

A project conducted under the supervision of an academic adviser for the nonthesis option. Requires the completion of a written report and an oral presentation of the research to the faculty. Prerequisite(s): consent of academic adviser.

SOC 860. Proseminar - Sociology (3).

Examines the academic roles of sociologists, the fields of study and types of research. Usually offered fall semester only. Fulfills the university's professional and scholarly integrity training requirement covering research misconduct, publication practices and responsible authorship, conflict of interest and commitment, ethical issues in data acquisition, management, sharing and ownership. Prerequisite(s): departmental consent.

SOC 870. Independent Reading (1-3).

Advanced systematic reading in a topical area under the tutorship of a member of the graduate faculty. Repeatable for a total of 6 credit hours. Prerequisite(s): departmental consent.

SOC 875. Thesis (1-3).

Student-driven research experience to address a specific research question. Potential topics should be formulated by the student and discussed with their advisor. Repeatable for credit.

SOC 876. Thesis (1-3).

Student-driven research experience to address a specific research question. Potential topics should be formulated by the student and discussed with their advisor. Repeatable for credit.
